Plouse Precision Manufacturing Launches New Interactive Website

--- Updated web features showcase company's dedication to providing high-quality service ---

HARRISBURG, Pa. – April 8, 2010 – Plouse Precision Manufacturing (PlouseManufacturing.com), one of the nation's leading contract manufacturers, announced today the launch of their new website with enhanced features, images and content. The new website allows visitors to join discussions on manufacturing, as well as find the latest company and industry news via social media sites.

Social networking is a new feature of the site, which includes Youtube, Facebook, LinkedIn and company blog. The content rich site offers ample information for the different markets served, capabilities, services and a virtual tour.

"We're extremely excited about the new website and its ability to engage clients on a social level," said Dale Seitz, president of Plouse Precision Manufacturing. "While the precision aspect of the site, enhanced inquiry forms and imagery showcase our high-quality manufacturing business, involving our clients and visitors on a social level is taking it one step further."

Creating Plouse's new website began with revamping the overall design. The precision design and images accent the quality behind the 50+ years of manufacturing experience. Web visitors are able to easily explore the site to learn about precision manufacturing, and the company's latest news and achievements.

"The site also calls out our dedication and commitment to high-quality manufacturing," explained Seitz. "Like our clients say, 'Once Plouse has the job, there's no need to worry.'"
